

KISS ME, I'M IRISH TODAY

Words & Music by Judy Pancoast © 2003

My Memere came from Canada, my Grandmama came from France;
But I was made in America, just like my underpants!
My hair is straight, my eyes are brown,
I've never been to Dublin Town,
But a four-leaf clover I have found so
Kiss me, I'm Irish today!

CHORUS:

Kiss me, I'm Irish today!
Kiss me, I'm Irish today!
Once a year St. Patrick's Day, everybody gets to say
Kiss me, I'm Irish today!
St. Patrick was a holy man, he drove the snakes away;
And if you go to Ireland, you'll ne'er see one today.
That's something I share with the Saint,
I don't like snakes, they make me faint!
So pucker up, make no complaint...just kiss me, I'm Irish today!

REPEAT CHORUS

If you kiss the Blarney Stone you'll have a lucky life:
You'll make a million dollars and you'll find a pretty wife
The Blarney Stone is there, not here
And I am standing close, my dear
So bring those big lips over here and kiss me, I'm Irish today

REPEAT CHORUS
