“Ship That Sails”

(Claudia Robin Gunn)

In my house there's a ship that sails
On my bedroom wall hanging by a nail
Poppa found it on holiday
In the Mediterranean Sea one day

The hull is white with a stripe of blue
Her name is Adventure and that's what we do
In search of treasure on a map I've made
I know we'll find it with my bucket and spade

CHORUS

Away away away again
To the salt wind and the south sea islands
Away away away again
Til the sun goes down til the sun goes down

The captain says it's time to leave
So I step on board and we pick up speed
Out the window across the garden green
Like an ocean made out of grass and trees

CHORUS

Til the sun goes down, til the sun goes down

When we come to the world's end
We'll drop our anchor down
When it gets dark we'll see the Milky Way
And the Pot and the Southern Cross
And the satellites falling to the ground
I hope my mother doesn't mind I'm out so late

In my house there's a ship that sails
On my bedroom wall hanging by a nail
The hull is white with a stripe of blue
Her name is Adventure and that's what we'll do

Til the sun goes down, til the sun goes down x4
