

11. Five Little Doughnuts

Let the fingers of one hand be the doughnuts. The other hand can shake the powdered sugar, and then walk into and out of the store. The last verse is a little different.

Five little doughnuts in the bakery shop.
Sprinkle powdered sugar on the very top.
Along came a man with a nickel to pay,
And he bought one doughnut and he walked away.

Four little doughnuts . . . Three . . . Two . . . One . . .

Zero little doughnuts in the bakery shop.
Can you sprinkle powdered sugar on the very top?
Along came a man with a nickel to pay,
And he looked, and he looked, and he walked away.
