“Now” (by Jason & Kori Hammell, Mates of State; adapted by Marsha Goodman-Wood)

I've been waiting for a sign
I've been waiting for a sign
To tell me when
Tell me when to cross the street

And you've been waiting for the light
You've been waiting for the light
To take you far
Take you far across the street

CHORUS:
Now, now, now, now, now, now, now
Now, now, now, now, now, now, now
Now, now, now, now, now, now, now
Woo-hoo, Woo-hoo!

Now, now, now, now, now, now, now
Now, now, now, now, now, now, now
Now, now, now, now, now, now, now
Woo-hoo, Woo-hoo!

I've been waiting for a sign
I've been waiting for a sign
To tell me when
Tell me when, to cross the street

And you've been waiting for the light
You've been waiting for the light
To take you far
Take you far across the street

CHORUS

And as I'm waiting at the curbside, now
I notice patterns in the paint
I'm wondering when the cars will stop
When I — as I turn and see your face

Now, now, now, now, now, now, now
Now, now, now, now, now, now, now
Now, now, now, now, now, now, now
Now, now, now, now, now, now, now
Now, now, now, now, now, now, now
Now, now, now, now, now, now, now
Now, now, now, now, now, now, now
Now, now, now, now, now, now, now
