

I HEAR

A Derivative Work, based on "Bad Moon Rising" by John C. Fogerty;

© 1969 (Renewed) Jondora Music, Inc. (BMI)

All Rights Reserved. Used by Permission.

New Lyrics by Rachel Arntson and Chez Raginiak

Recording 2004 Rachel Arntson and Chez Raginiak

I hear noises all around me. Some are soft and some are loud.

Listen and you can hear the noises.

Tell me the name of the sound.

Noises all around, and sometimes they're too loud.

Tell me the name of the sound.

Lead singer: OK, here's your first one. What do you hear?

You're right. It's a car horn.

I hear the car horn honking. I hear it honking really loud.

I hear the car horn honking. I hear it honking really loud.

Honking really loud. Car honk, honking really loud.

Now, that's a really loud sound.

OK, here's the next one.

What is that? Well, of course, it's a telephone.

I hear the telephone ringing. I hear it ringing really loud.

I hear the telephone ringing. I hear it ringing really loud.

Ringing really loud. Telephone ringing really loud.

That's a really loud sound.

OK, here's another one.

Oh, is it a bird? Is it a plane? It's a baby!

I hear the little baby crying. I hear the baby crying loud.

I hear the little baby crying. I hear the baby crying loud.

Crying really loud. Baby crying really loud.

Now that's a really loud sound.

Ok, here's one more.

It's, it's thunder!

I hear the thunder in the rain storm. I hear the thunder really loud.

I hear the thunder in the rain storm. I hear the thunder really loud.

Thunder really loud. Thunder really loud.

Now that indeed is a really loud sound.

Noises all around, and sometimes they're too loud.

But you know, I like to play this game with sounds.

What's your favorite sound?